

Euthal – Chilentobel

First ascents: unknown

13.01.2024; Franz Friebe, Robert Waddy (AACZ)

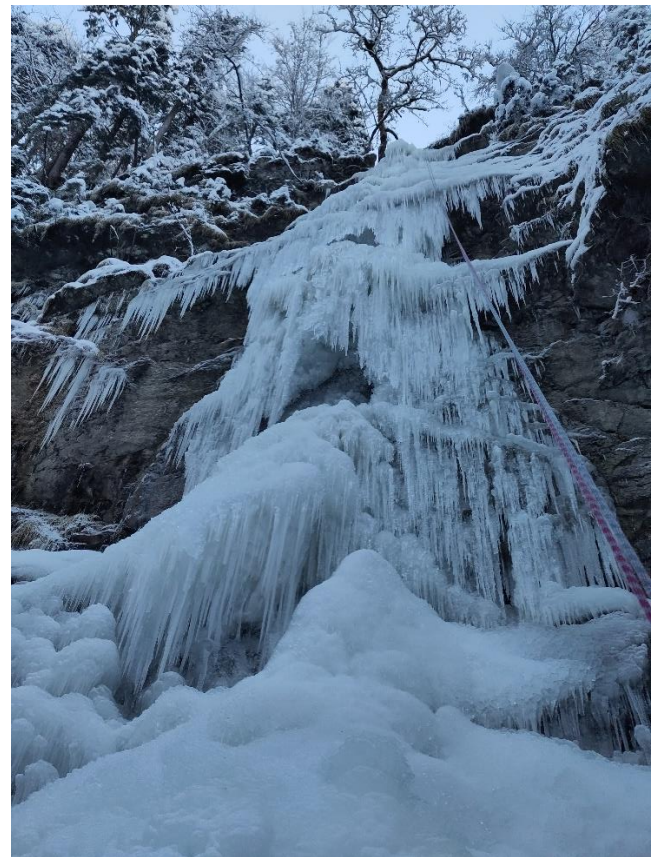

The Chilentobel is a narrow and well sheltered gorge with its own microclimate. Föhn and sunshine won't affect the ice. Due to its low altitude, the ice falls collapse quickly when it rains. One cold week is sufficient to form enough ice to climb with a belay from the top.

Access: Start from bus stop Euthal, Drusberg, follow the hiking trail to Chli Aubrig and Vorder Chrummflue and take the path through the Chilentobel. There are several possible lines in the gorge and above the path.

Übungsfall, 30m, WI 2

The top can be reached through the forest on the right.

Ernstfall, 50m, WI 4+/5

Belay on a tree directly on the path. To use the thickest trees, 60m ropes are needed.
